A Royal Wedding.

A great society event came off in Landon on Saturday which was attended by the fashion and elite of Lordon and Great Britain. This was the marriage of Lady Sarah Isabel Augusta Spencer Churchill, youngest sister of the Dake of Mer.borough and L rd Randelph Churchill, to Lieutenant Gordon C. Wilson, son of Sir Samuel Wilson, member of Parliament for Portsmouth. The ceremony took visce in St George's church, Hangver Equare, which bas been the scene of so many fachlonable weddings. Saturday the building was crowded to the doors with the wealth and fashion of England, all eager to say that they had been present at a ceremony not to have been invited to which would have been proof of being out of the social world.

The crowd was plentifully eprichled with members of the highest aristocracy, and the gathering was remarkable for the elegance of the toilets worn by the ladies. Some of the dresses which have been especially designed for this cecasion could be described by no other word than gorgeous. The whole some was one of spiender and mag-nificence seldem seen in London even upon the most festive occasions.

The wedding was graced by rogalty itself. Lieutecast Gordon Wilson belongs to the Royal Horse Guards (he Bluse) whose heafquarters are at Windsor, and whose Colonel-in-chief is his Royal Highness Al bert Elward, Prince of Walss. The Prince was a conepiouous guest at the ceremony, and the fact that he graced the service with his presence added greatly to the related the His Royal Highness Prince occasion. His Royal Highness Prince George William Frederick Charles, Duke of Can bidge, Commander-la-chief of the forces, was also present at the marriage of his young subordinate. A large number of other military officers respiet dent in gorgeous uniforms added greatly to the bril-liancy of a scene, which in more than one of its aspects rantock of the nature of a royal Principal among the ladies who graced the scene with their charming presence was her Royal Highness, Mary Adelaids Wil belmira Elizabeth, Duchess of Teck, and a cousin of the Queen and Princess Victoria of Teck, daughter of the Duchess.

A very pretty feature of the service was the arrangement for making a pathway from the porch of St. George's and down the main alse to the alter. The troop of the Horse Guards commanded by the bridgeroom were drawn up in full uniform, with side arms, in rows, one on each side, and through these rows of soldiers the bride and groom, smiling, passed after the ceramony was completed. It was an impressive sight to see the cavalrymen starding immovable as statues through the long service. With Situated on Hunting crosk, are now prepared to curiosity at the presence of royally or the used in the trade on the chortest notice. Apply to marriege service than if they had been part and parcel of the church Itself.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Right Hon, and Most Rev. Edward White Benson, Lord Archbishop of Canter-bury. In all is details the wedding was perfect, and will long be remembered as one of the greatest social events of recent years.
